Axion Engineering Ltd. was a multi-locational light engineering company. It had manufacturing facilities at Hyderabad, Pondicherry and Indore. The company adopted budgetary system with main emphasis on production and expense budgets. The budget targets used to be set on the basis of analysis of production facilities and production operations. While two units located at Hyderabad and Pondicherry were working properly and were able to meet their budget targets, Indore unit was not able to do so.

Mr. P. Manohar was transferred to Indore unit as a manager. He joined the company about eight years back as engineer trainee and became the assistant plant manager at Hyderabad unit, the biggest of the three units. Mr. Manohar was very ambitious and a little bit autocratic. He believed in the exercise of authority and control to carry out his instructions. He was high achiever and believed in getting things done. He got quick promotions in the company.

Immediately after joining at Indore unit as plant manager, Mr. Manohar made preliminary study of the plant and issued instructions to all departments to increase production by ten per cent. He also instructed all supervisors to strictly adhere to budgets. He introduced several new reports and watched the operations very closely. He suspended two supervisors in the second month for not meeting the budget targets. Subsequently, two supervisors left the plant.

With all his efforts, the unit was very much on the right track and within six months exceeded the new budgeted figures by eight per cent. On setting the plant right, he was called back at Hyderabad unit as plant manager where vacancy arose. However, shortly after he left for Hyderabad, the productivity at Indore unit fell below the earlier level and the budget was again in trouble.

- a. Analyze and comment on the type of organizational climate created by Mr. Manohar at Indore unit. [08]
- b. Why there was a drop in productivity at the unit after Mr. Manohar left it? [07]
