Q-6 Case Study / Case-let:
Read the given case and answer the questions that follow it: 15

Isobel Stevenson Peter, a 32 year old, suffered horrific injuries as the result of the collapse of a bridge over which he was driving his car. He has been classified as being in a persistent brain dead state for the past five years. Although Peter's brain stem is still functioning, his heart is beating and he can breathe spontaneously, he is dependent on oral feeding for the continuation of his life. The doctors in charge of his case have come to the decision that Peter's life is no longer of value to him and have requested that they be allowed to withdraw his food supply. It is legal for doctors to withdraw medical support, however, feeding a patient is regarded as part of palliative care and not a medical treatment. Peter's parents have taken the case to court in order to prevent his doctors from withdrawing his feeding tubes. The debate over whether to withdraw Peter's food supply in the above case arises from the conflicting values of his parents and his doctors. Peter's perspective is central to evaluating the case; the withdrawal of his feeding tubes violates his right to life. The constraint of Peter's role is that being in a persistent vegetative state, he is unable to exercise his autonomy and indicate what value he believes should be placed on his life.

Questions

1. What decision would you advise the judges to make in this case? Why? 08

2. How would you justify doctors' decision of withdrawing medical support of Isobel? 07

Justify your answer in context of professional ethics?
