Indian companies are increasingly realizing the need to form and execute their business strategies by keeping their ears to the ground and listening to a demanding consumer, in an economic environment dominated by transient consumption patterns. The importance of personalizing each consumer’s experience in an increasingly complex environment marked by an evolving regulatory landscape, and the advent of digital technologies, cannot be overstated.

Speaking at the first edition of Mint’s Corporate Strategy Awards 2018 in Mumbai on Friday, Gaurav Zutshi, chief digital officer at Aditya Birla Capital Ltd, said: “For us, the most important thing is customer centricity. We don’t have a physical product (in the financial services business), and everything we do is focused on selling an experience centered on the customer.”

“You must offer the right product at the right time, to the right customer. We have been customer-centric in all our offerings across sectors by pushing for the use of analytics, technology and operations excellence. This has been our strategy for the last decade and has not changed. Focusing on the right segment allows you to penetrate deeper,” said Ashish Panchal, executive vice-president, group business head and chief of staff at Bajaj Finance Ltd. Bajaj Finance took the pole position in the “Shaping” category of the awards, characterized by a nascent, unpredictable and malleable business environment where the leader influences and establishes the rules of the game. Even so, merely understanding consumer patterns and needs may not be enough.

The maker of the Bullet motorcycle won the award in the “Classical” category, marked by a relatively stable and predictable market, where a competitive advantage is won by building superior scale and capabilities. Simply looking through the retail lens helps as well, like in the case of infrastructure giant Tata Steel Ltd.

The Tata Group flagship won the first place in the “Renewal” category, which is marked by a harsh business environment as indicated by weak financial performance, in terms of low growth and paucity of capital.

Read the above mentioned case and discuss the various forces of business environment in different sectors mentioned in the case. Also, explain what the companies mentioned in case had done to survive in such changing business environment
