

CHAROTAR UNIVERSITY OF SCIENCE & TECHNOLOGY

Master of Business Administration (MBA)

Semester – I University Examination 2009-10

MB 720 Organizational Behaviour

Date: 09.01.2010, Saturday

Time: 1:00p.m. to 4:00p.m.

Maximum Marks: 70

Instructions:

1. This paper contains six questions, of which the last one is a case analysis
2. All questions are compulsory.
3. Each of the first five questions will carry 10 marks and the last case analysis will carry 20 marks

Q1	Workforce diversity has become a reality as companies in India expand and go beyond the state and national boundaries. How does a manager integrate the people, who come from different cultural backgrounds and work in different societal settings, with the core values of the organization? What are the conditions that will help the integration of differences?	10
Q-2 a)	List two main weaknesses of Indian culture and show how these are reflected in your own style of working.	06
Q-2 b)	Decide which of Maslow's categories the following fit into: a) Receiving praise from your manger b) A family party c) An artist forgetting to eat d) A man washed up on a desert island e) A pay increase f) Joining a local drama group g) Being awarded the Best Employee Award h) Buying a house.	04
Q-3	What is equity theory? What is the difference between felt negative inequity and felt positive inequity? What are some of the things that employees will do to restore equity?	10
Q-4	What are the fundamental assumptions of Positive Organizational Behaviour (POB) and its usefulness in organizational functioning? What steps a manager can take to improve self-efficacy of employees and describe its relationship with individual performance?	10
Q-5	As a manager when you assign a task to a group of workers you run the risk of encouraging 'social loafing'. Why does social loafing occur and what steps should you take to reduce social loafing?	10
Q-6	Read the 'slice-of-life' given below carefully and answer the questions given at the end of the case. S. Navlikar, an engineer in a construction company, always maintained cordial relationship with the co-workers, subordinates and the top management of the firm. As a person, Navlikar expected that the boss should reward the employees by praising him/her in public. He had a reputation for punctuality and conscientiousness. Last year the company had bagged three contracts because of this person's efforts.	20

This year the company had asked Navlikar to prepare a blueprint of a model township, which it intended to construct. Navlikar along with other engineers and architects of the company managed to develop the blueprint within the specified time. During the presentation of the blueprint to the top management, Navlikar looked extremely involved. As he went along with his presentation on the structural aspects of the project the General Manager of the company who was just one layer above Navlikar in the company hierarchy, stopped him in the middle. He was visibly annoyed; "what are you saying? We are a company to make profit and not to hike our costs?" Your design would cost the hell." "No. We stand for quality and we should not at all compromise on that aspect", interjected Navlikar.

At this point, the MD had intervened and allowed Navlikar to carry on. Again as Navlikar started talking about sewerage system and hygienic water supply system the GM again threw a furious look at Navlikar, "Do you know how much your system cost?" Navlikar looked at his file and replied "we have three projections based on the changing market situation" and as he proceeded to quote the figures the GM very forcefully said we want one figure we do not want to be confused with your jugglery with numbers."

At this, the MD intervened once again and said. "Gentlemen from now onwards we shall proceed with the presentations and no questions in between shall be asked of course you are free to give your opinions but only at the end the presentation." At the end of the presentation the MD who was also an engineer commented, "I accept the blue print in totality because Navlikar did it". The General Manager visibly disagreed with the MD he stated, "Navlikar's plan cannot be implemented. Before it is taken up seriously the group should debug it make another presentation".

However, the MD completely disagreed with the GM and expressed his confidence in Navlikar. Members of Navlikar's group were highly impressed by the group leader's deft handling of the presentation. One of the members of the Navlikar's group, Mr. Rangarajan, was so impressed by Navlikar's deft handling of assignments and dealings with the subordinates that he always talked about Navlikar to whom ever he knew, including people outside the organisation. Once he was telling his friend Somayajulu who had never met Navlikar, how wonderful his boss is. At the end of it Somayajulu commented "It seems he is unlike a typical engineer".

a. What sort of Leadership behaviour the MD is exhibiting? Is it healthy for the organisation? Give reasons for your answer

b. Why is the GM opposed to Navlikar's proposal?

c. According to you, what sort of person Navlikar is? Please describe in your own words.

d. What sort of listening skill was being exhibited by the MD and the GM. Are they different? Give specific reasons for your answer.

e. According to Rangarajan what sort of leadership style Navlikar has exhibited. Explain.